Teaching Materials

- 1999-present Cases, Materials and Problems for Environmental Law I and 2. Internet based teaching materials organized around ecosystems prepared jointly with Barry Boyer and Margaret Shannon.
- 1997-2000 Materials Administrative Law. Provided in digital form for student access via the internet.

COURSES TAUGHT

- Current Environmental Law 1 and Environmental Law 2. Review of institutional frameworks and ecological perspectives for defining and resolving environmental problems. Includes common law, administrative, market, stakeholder, and informational mechanisms. (With Barry Boyer and Margaret Shannon).
- Administrative Law.* Examination of the constitutional status, political role, organization, procedures, powers, jurisdiction, and obligations of administrative agencies.
- Property.* Introduction to traditional interests in property and the legal framework for managing, allocating, and distributing resources. Focuses largely on the classical 'private law' system, but emphasizes the social origins and effects of property interests.
- "Private Law Making.* Seminar examining the rapidly growing practice of standard setting and enforcement by networks of neo-governmental organizations.
- Colloquium on Current Issues in Environmental Policy.* Upper level course for law students enrolled in the Environmental Concentration. Examines cutting edge issues in environmental policy. (With Margaret Shannon).
- Recent Enforcing Environmental Law. First year bridge course on the private and public enforcement of environmental laws. (With Barry Boyer)
- Introduction to U.S. Environmental Law.* Short Course for Law Students at the University of Freiburg, Germany, February, 2001.
- Forest Certification as Environmental Policy Making.* Short Course for Forestry Students at the University of Freiburg, Germany, February 2001.
- Law and Ecosystem Management.* Seminar on the legal issues confronting efforts to achieve ecosystem based management through inter-jurisdictional and inter-ownership coordination and information sharing.
- Science and Natural Resources Policy.* Seminar on the changing role of science in natural resources and environmental policy making. Readings on sociology of science, policy studies, and ecology. Empirical case studies on use of science in selected natural resource policy processes.
- Past Natural Resource Regulation and Administration. Builds on the institutional structure outlined by the basic property course, but focuses primarily on the operation of legislative and administrative agencies in regulating 'private' and managing 'public' resources.

Air Pollution Regulation. Seminar on the legal and institutional structure of air pollution regulation in the North America, Europe, and Asia. Emphasis on institutional development and the special challenges of creating international systems of air pollution control.

Tribal Law and Sovereignty. (With John Mohawk and Robert Porter). Seminar inquiring into the meaning, implications, possibility, and implementation of tribal sovereignty in the modern world.

Federal Indian Law. Introduction to the general legal framework, primarily federal, in which issues involving Native Americans and their communities are adjudicated.

Democracy. (With Guyora Binder) Seminar on alternative ways of conceiving and constructing democratic institutions. Relationship between "liberal" and participatory modes of democracy.

Environmental Institutions. (With Barry Boyer and John Thomas). Seminar on alternative ways of organizing and reforming environmental regulation.

Regulatory Enforcement (With Barry Boyer and Jeff Lacey). Seminar on the problems and choices confronting regulatory enforcement officials and how they resolve them.

Empirical Research Design. Introduction to logic and practice of social research. Emphasis on comparative advantages and disadvantages of alternative methods.

Criminal Law. Introduction to the system in which criminal conduct is defined, detected, evaluated, and punished in the U.S. Special emphasis on the problems posed by "group" criminality.

Public Law Processes. Introduction to the legal structure of public law making, primarily legislation and secondarily administration. Inquiry into the nature and legitimacy of law in a democratic society.

Workshop on Indian Law (With John Mohawk). Exploratory seminar on the legal issues confronting Indian Peoples and possible ways of assisting them in developing responses.

Theories of Property. Seminar on philosophical, economic and sociological analysis of property systems.

Natural Resources Law. Examination of legal institutions governing the use, allocation and distribution of natural resources. Emphasis on alternative institutional arrangements.

Law and Social Policy. Seminar examining the relationship between social interests and the formation and implementation of legal policies.

Torts. General introduction to civil law rights and liabilities among persons in non-contractual relationships.

Energy Law. Survey of state and federal laws affecting production and use of common and emerging energy forms.
