

November 2014

Sociology Student Spotlight

ALEXANDRA FUERCH

Originally an accounting major, Alexandra switched to sociology to lay the foundation for a graduate degree in higher education. She hopes to help students further their education, be successful, and pursue their goals in life. She says that she loves how her Sociology classes relate to her everyday life: “I feel that I am not only learning information, but I am using that information,” she says. “I can use what I learn to better myself as a person and understand the world around me.”

Alexandra is already working to help students in education. She tutors students at Niagara County Community College in mathematics, and was recently promoted to the position of Coordinator of Tutoring.

Congratulations, Alexandra!