Sociology Student Spotlight

EMILY SCHMID

Emily is a pre-med student whose experience in Medical Sociology led her to declare sociology as a major. She says, “I fell in love with the class realizing how useful the information I gained could be in my practice.” She says she switched her major from biology to sociology the day after she learned about the Department’s specialization in Health & Society.

Emily is very active around campus and the community. She represents the Department of Sociology as an Ambassador for the College of Arts and Sciences, does community service as a member of the APMS club for future doctors, shadows various healthcare professionals as a volunteer at Sisters of Charity Hospital, and also manages to hold down jobs at the print shop in the Commons and at a local restaurant.

Congratulations, Emily!
