

November 2015

Sociology Student Spotlight

KRISTIN WALDBY

Kristin came to sociology after taking 101 as a prerequisite for her other major. Her sociology classes have not only given her “an entirely new perspective on the world,” but have also inspired her to seek a career in health education, health communication, or clinical mental health counseling . Kristin’s career path was motivated by the social and economic health inequalities that she learned about in her courses. She says that she wants to do what she can to “help educate individuals on their health and harm reduction strategies to try to reduce some health disparities.”

Currently she works as a counselor for the New York State HIV/AIDS hotline at Roswell Park Cancer Institute.

Congratulations, Kristin!