

December 2016

Sociology Student Spotlight

JULIA SCHOONOVER

When asked why she decided to become a sociology major, Julia said, “Through sociology we begin to ask ourselves more questions. While searching for those answers we obtain powerful insights into the social processes that shape our everyday lives.” Between serving as president of the undergraduate sociology club and writing an honor’s thesis in sociology, Julia is one of our most engaged undergraduate students.

Julia has also studied abroad in Vietnam and plans to spend some time abroad after graduation. When she returns to the U.S., she intends to pursue a PhD in sociology.

Congratulations Julia!