Sociology Student Spotlight

Rylee James

When asked why she became a sociology major, Rylee answered: “I desired a discipline that challenged me to approach the world from a more progressive, forward-thinking perspective.” Looking ahead to graduation, she says: “Now, as I move past my undergraduate career, I go forward with the confidence that Sociology has made me a better consumer of knowledge and producer of creative, innovative thinking.”

In August, Rylee will be moving to the Kingdom of Tonga to serve as an English Literary Facilitator in the Peace Corps. After that, she hopes to pursue a Master’s degree and PhD in International Affairs or Development. Eventually, her goal is to work with the U.S. Department of State or the United Nations.

Congratulations, Rylee!
