

October 2017

Sociology Student Spotlight

VICTORIA FICHTER

Victoria has always been interested in observing and understanding people. She says she enjoys studying sociology because “I feel that sociology truly allowed me to learn more about myself in understanding the vast diversity among races, genders, cultures, and individuals.

Especially in today's political climate, I am able to take the knowledge I gained through sociology and realization of the power of peoples' differences into the world.”

After graduation, Victoria plans to continue her studies in the Occupational Therapy Program at UB. She says “Sociology has laid the foundation for my future Occupational Therapy career, giving me the tools to work with a myriad of patients and be as effective as possible.”

Congratulations, Victoria!