Are you a UB-SIM sociology major who will graduate this year? Are you a UB alumni who majored in sociology? The Department of Sociology has a news flash: UB-SIM sociology majors whose GPAs are 3.2 or higher can apply to the Master's program in Sociology without having to take the GRE (or TOEFL or IELTS)! Individuals who complete applications by January 15 are eligible for full funding consideration (teaching assistantships, two $7500 scholarships and two $5000 scholarships earmarked for UB-SIM sociology majors). A master's degree in Sociology will give you a marketable package of research skills, and deeper knowledge in the Department's areas of specialization (family and life course, law and society, social inequalities, urban and community, work and organizations...and a growing emphasis on health).

Why is this an especially appealing opportunity for UB-SIM students and alums?

- The Master's program has been redesigned so that a student can complete the Master's degree in a single year
- Students only need to reside in Buffalo from August 2015 to May 2016 to complete course work--the master's project can be completed, if students prefer, at home
- You meet the other talented faculty in the Department who are unable to travel to Singapore to teach
- You turn yourself into a competitive candidate for high quality PhD programs, if a doctorate is your goal

Apply online
https://www.gradmit.buffalo.edu/etw/ets/et.asp?nxappid=GRA&nxmid=GetApplication

If you are interested but uncertain, please contact Debra Street (Department Chair, dastreet@buffalo.edu), Bob Wagmiller (Director of Graduate Studies rw26@buffalo.edu) of Mary Nell Trautner (Director of Undergraduate Studies, trautner@buffalo.edu) for more information. Hurry--your best chance for funding support is to complete your application before the January 15 deadline.